

Abhijeet Rajesh Sant

Product Manager | AI-Driven Growth & Data Platforms

abhijeetsant10@gmail.com
<https://www.linkedin.com/in/abhijeetsant05/>
Open to Relocation

SUMMARY

Product professional with years of experience in B2B SaaS, transitioning from product management to product growth, analytics and marketing. Demonstrated ability driving go-to-market strategies, product positioning, and cross-functional collaboration with Product, Sales, and Marketing teams. Proven track record launching technical products, creating sales enablement materials, and using data-driven approaches to optimize customer acquisition and engagement. Strong analytical skills with experience in SaaS platforms, developer tools, and technical product communication.

EDUCATION

|                                                                           |                      |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------|
| New York University, Leonard N. Stern School of Business, New York | 09/19 - 09/21 |
| Master of Science in Information Systems                                  |                      |
| Rashtrasant Tukdoji Maharaj Nagpur University, Nagpur, India       | 09/10 - 05/14 |
| Bachelor of Engineering in Electronics                                    |                      |

CORE COMPETENCIES

Product & GTM: Go-to-Market Strategy, Product Launches, Cross-functional Collaboration, Stakeholder Management, Sales Enablement

Growth & Analytics: Customer Acquisition, A/B Testing, ROI Analysis, Data-Driven Decision Making, Growth Experimentation

Technical Communication: Product Positioning, Technical Documentation, Messaging for Technical Audiences, Sales Collateral Development

Technical Skills: Python, SQL, Analytics (Power BI, Tableau), Agile/Scrum, SaaS Platforms, Developer Tools

RELEVANT EXPERIENCE

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                      |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------|
| Collabera LLC, Washington DC   Technical Product Manager                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | 05/22– 12/25  |
| <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>Partnered with marketing and sales teams to launch AI-powered recruitment platform, developing product positioning and sales materials that contributed to 20% adoption increase across 15+ Fortune 500 clients</li><li>Created sales enablement collateral including pitch decks, competitive battlecards, and ROI calculators that reduced sales cycle time by 30% and improved deal closure rates</li><li>Analyzed customer acquisition data and conversion funnels to identify optimization opportunities, implementing changes that increased engagement by 35% and reduced response time by 60%</li><li>Collaborated cross-functionally with product, engineering, and sales teams to validate product-market fit and refine messaging based on customer feedback and usage analytics</li><li>Conducted competitive analysis and market research to inform product positioning and differentiation strategy for technical B2B SaaS platform</li></ul> |                      |
| Archemy Inc, New York   Technical Product Manager                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 12/21 – 05/22 |
| <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>Led product development and go-to-market planning for AI-driven content platform from concept to launch, coordinating with ML engineers, designers, and stakeholders</li><li>Developed product narrative and positioning for technical AI product, creating documentation and presentations that communicated value proposition to diverse audiences</li><li>Conducted user research and analyzed adoption metrics to refine product features, resulting in 40% improvement in content discoverability and user experience</li><li>Collaborated with cross-functional teams to establish product-market fit and drive early adoption among major institutional customers</li></ul>                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          |                      |

Commvault Systems Inc, Tinton Falls, NJ | Product Growth Intern

06/21 – 08/21

- Supported product roadmap development for enterprise BaaS/SaaS products, working with UX and QA teams to improve release velocity by 15%
- Analyzed product performance data and customer feedback to identify growth opportunities and inform product strategy decisions
- Contributed to executive presentations on product growth initiatives, supporting investment decisions for $2M+ product strategies
- Implemented process improvements that reduced manual overhead by 10% and accelerated product iteration cycles

Larsen & Toubro Infotech (now LTI-Mindtree), Mumbai, IN

04/15 – 07/19

Product Manager – Analytics & Growth:

- Managed implementation and rollout of B2B digital supply chain analytics platform across 25+ global enterprise clients, reducing onboarding time by 45%
- Created product documentation, training materials, and client presentations that communicated technical platform capabilities to business stakeholders
- Developed predictive analytics dashboards using statistical methods (regression analysis, forecasting models) that improved prediction accuracy by 25%
- Collaborated with international teams across product, engineering, and client services to drive platform adoption and customer satisfaction
- Analyzed customer usage patterns and feedback to inform product improvements, resulting in 30% operational efficiency gains and 50% faster decision-making

ADDITIONAL EXPERIENCE

---

Municipal Meeting Platform | Technical Product Manager

- Leading 0→1 development of civic-tech marketplace platform by applying user research, technical architecture design, and multi-stakeholder collaboration with government agencies
- Building AI-driven analytics for automated policy analysis processing 50K+ documents, establishing scalable foundation for future agentic AI solutions and ecosystem integrations
- Shaping 3-year product roadmap and technical architecture to enable platform scalability, API-first design, and expansion into adjacent markets aligned with public sector needs